

The Year in Reading

2021-2022

By Mr. Jackson

#1

One of the best books that I've ever read. The detail was exquisite.

#2

Entertaining story about life on Mackinac Island for a dock porter. These are the people who take luggage from the ferries to the lodgings on the island.

#3

Thriller about military intrigue from a former Navy Seal.

#4

Serious history about a once influential family in the US.

Anderson Cooper is a descendant of the Vanderbilts.

Surprisingly engaging tale of the two historic giants who lived at approximately the same time.

Loved these short stories that covered many aspects of contemporary life.

#7

It's our OBOS! Our first graphic novel, too.

There is a lot more to this dude than acting, that's for sure.

#9

A must read for aspiring journalists and fans of All the President's Men.

Enjoyable, yet educational story of trying to thrive in America. The graphic novel is a quick read.

#12

This thriller writer doesn't disappoint. This is the origin story of one of his enduring characters: a female FBI agent stationed in the desert.

#13

The title says it all—told from the perspective of a psychologist.

#15

Another thought-provoking legal thriller from Mr. Grisham—master storyteller.

#16

Thought-provoking follow-up by Benjamin Alire Saenz.

#17

Understated novel that gives some insight into Iranian life.

#18

Fine book from a well-respected historian. However, when I unexpectedly found a statistical error (a big one), she was gracious when I contacted her.

#19

This rekindled memories of being in Huron Civic Theatre's production of the Sound of Music when I was in high school.

#20

This is a dramatic and disturbing story about the abuse that Native Americans had to face at government schools.

#21

Entertaining thriller about a unique plot to bring down an airliner.

#22

Very cool thriller set against an iconic political backdrop featuring a “rigged” election.

#23

Jodi Picoult seldom disappoints, and this one was a real page-turner.

#24

Needed a little humor and I got it from this guy. However, there was a bit of tragedy, too. Maybe more than that.

#25

Started the year by reading this. I found that while some things worked out like they did for the authors, I will pull back on other aspects for next year.

#26

Very witty autobiography from one of my favorite performers from the 1980's.

#27

Nostalgic look at the summer that I turned 14. I felt older.

#28

Highly impactful book regarding one of the most courageous men that I've ever read about.

#29

This became our OBOS this year, and most students reported that they benefited from it.

#30

I enjoyed this tale that combined sports, school, and war. Grisham is so versatile!

#31

Another period thriller from Mr. Baldacci. A nice diversion.

#32

One of the newer works from the great Stephen King.

So readable.

#33

At one time, this was a contender for our OBOS. But it is probably too long and some may find it difficult.

#34

Not as enjoyable for me as The Hate U Give, but it was still entertaining and enlightening.

#1 New York Times Bestselling Author of THE HATE U GIVE

#35

Tragic tale of sisters in DR who are in the wrong place

At the wrong time.

#36

This one stuck with me for awhile. I will never look at a rest area the same way again.

Saul Bellow clearly is effective at telling a story. I had waited for years to read it. Glad that I did.

This is a good one to end on. One of the best lessons is that most colleges will figure out a way to charge tuition on what your parents earn.
